What was the most beneficial part of the Bible study?

- It disciplines me to take the time with my Bible
- The various view points of the participants and the summary by Jeff Cavins.
- Greater appreciation of the Mass
- The format of having us read and answer questions followed by group discussion gave some accountability so I was more likely to complete the assignment
- Making the connections between the Old Testament with the New.
- The DVDs and segmenting for each week
- The questions and tapes – all of it by Jess and now Tim Cray and the people
- Group meeting and discussion, open, great leader'
- Knowledge of Scriptures; form community; strengthen faith
- Watching the DVD by theologians
- Jeff Cavins lectures
- Jeff Cavins knowledge and teaching

What was the least beneficial part of the Bible study?

- Wasn't one
- Some of the group discussion that got off track
- Time of day – evenings are a very exhausting time
- It was hard to follow and remember the symbolism. I really enjoyed Acts.
- The catechism
- None
- Maybe getting off subject – it happens once in a while

Other comments or suggestions?

- Bible studies always serve to introduce me to other parishioners and strengthen my faith.
- The Revelation study is excellent particularly how it ties to the mass and its elements
- Consider scheduling something on the weekend. Although it might be hard to do 10 weeks in a row.
- Time line of civilized history tied into biblical history and church history.
- More discussion/debate/ideas questions
- Bible time line needs to be offered yearly at least every other year
- Sunday study group. Looking for Bible time line please on Sunday!
- I really enjoyed the content, the leadership, and the company of those who participate in this study.
- Bible Time Line should be offered yearly
- Would like to do the Bible Time Line again
